Synopsis

Mona - a Child Psychology major - is keen to put her knowledge into practice, as she takes on a job as a full-time tutor for the two orphaned nephews of a renowned psychiatrist. She discovers two almost feral children left to their own devices, living in a crumbling mansion. Even the old housekeeper, Clara, seems more prone to the bottle than to the kid's education. As though the children's resistance to her efforts were not enough, she soon discovers a more urgent and serious threat lurking: José, the ex-gardener, continually appears in the ground, looking for the boy. Even Clara's assurance that the man died two years earlier does anything to weaken Mona's resolve to rid her protégés of this threat. This obsession blinds her to the fact that the inhabitants of the mansion have other plans for her.
